REGULAR, EFFECTIVE EDUCATION AND TRAINING

It is the Company's goal to provide its directors, officers, employees, and, where appropriate, subcontractors and agents with the information and education they need to fully understand and comply with all applicable laws, regulations, OIG guidance, and the Company's policies and procedures. compliance training programs appropriate for directors, employees and, where applicable, subcontractors and agents. Methodologies for the dissemination of information include, but are not limited to, email bulletins, list-serves, web-based training programs, memos, and live lectures.

All employees are required to complete compliance training promptly after hire and annually thereafter. In addition to annual compliance training, the Compliance Officer may mandate additional compliance training for some or all directors, officers, employees and, where applicable, subcontractors and agents in the event any instance of non-compliance or a concern regarding a compliance issue arises. The Board of Directors will receive compliance training on an annual basis. The Compliance Officer is responsible for arranging/conducting such training in a timely manner and the Ethics and Compliance team maintains documentation of such Board of Director compliance training.

REPORTING CHANNELS

All Company directors, officers, employees and, where applicable, subcontractors and agents, have a duty to report any suspected violation of law, regulation, OIG guidance, PhRMA Code guidance, or Company policies and procedures to Veloxis. Failure to report suspected violations of law, regulation, OIG guidance, PhRMA Code, or Company policies and procedures violates the Code of Conduct and may lead to disciplinary action up to and including termination. Such suspicions may be reported to the Compliance Officer in person or confidentially and anonymously through the Ethics and Compliance Helpline as set forth below.

To anonymously report a suspected violation of law or Company policy:

Call: 1-833-214-6429

Email: reports@lighthouse-services.com (include "Veloxis" in subject line)

All reports should contain as much detail as possible so that a thorough investigation may be conducted. This is especially important if reports are made anonymously since the identity of the reporter would not be available if the investigator(s) need additional information or have any questions. Reports of suspected violations should include, at a minimum, the following information:

- The date(s), time(s) and place(s) where the violation took place;
- The person(s) involved, including any witnesses;
- The nature of the violation(s);
- Details of the action(s) or activity (ies) surrounding the violation; and
- If the reporter desires a response to his or her complaint, or to be contacted for questions or additional information, the reporter's name, phone number and /or address.

All reports of suspected violations of law, the Code of Conduct, or Company policies and procedures are logged and shall remain confidential, to the extent possible.

The Compliance Officer will ensure that training and educational materials include information on how suspected violations of law, the Code of Conduct, or Company policies and procedures may be reported.

Managers who receive reports of suspected violation of law, the Code of Conduct, or Company policies and procedures must report these suspicions to the Compliance Officer immediately.

Veloxis will not tolerate any form of retaliation for reporting, in good faith, a perceived instance of such fraud, waste, or abuse or suspected violation of law, regulation, OIG guidance, PhRMA Code guidance, the Code of Conduct or the Company's policies and procedures. Any such retaliation will be investigated and, upon substantiation, met with disciplinary action up to and including termination. All Company directors, officers, employees, subcontractors and agents are protected from retaliation related to the good faith reporting of potential fraud, waste, or abuse or a suspected violation of law, regulation, OIG guidance, PhRMA Code guidance, the Code of Conduct or the Company's policies and procedures.

MONITORING AND AUDITING

The Compliance Officer and Ethics and Compliance team with assistance from Company Senior Management will develop activities designed to monitor and audit Veloxis's compliance with applicable laws, regulations, OIG guidance, PhRMA Code guidance, the Code of Conduct and the Company's policies and procedures. Such activities may be "informally" conducted by the various Veloxis operational departments as ongoing monitoring or they may be more formalized reviews of Company functions and operations in the form of audits.

On an annual basis, Veloxis will develop an audit plan, which will be subject to the approval of the Board of Directors. Such audit plan will include two external audits: (1) an annual financial audit conducted by an independent certified public accountant and (2) an annual compliance audit aimed at ensuring compliance with OIG guidance, as well as Company policies and procedures conducted by an independent third party review organization. In addition, such audit work plan may include at least one internal audit designed to audit compliance with applicable laws, OIG guidance, as well as Company policies and procedures. The results of all audits will be shared by the Compliance Officer with the Board of Directors.

The Compliance Officer shall make recommendations to improve compliance, quality, business efficiency, and effectiveness. Depending on the circumstances, the Board of Directors may appoint an attorney to conduct a legal investigation.

On an annual basis, the Compliance Officer will assess the effectiveness of the ethics and compliance program. The program will be updated as needed to reflect changes in applicable law, regulation, OIG guidance, PhRMA Code guidance, the Code of Conduct, the Company's policies and procedures or Company practices.

PUBLICIZED DISCIPLINARY GUIDELINES

Company officers, employees, and, where applicable, subcontractors and agents are expected to abide by the standards set forth in the Code of Conduct and applicable Company policies and procedures. On an annual basis, all Company directors, officers, and employees must certify their compliance with the Code of Conduct. Compliance with the Code of Conduct and Company policies and procedures may contribute to an employee's promotion and increased compensation, as compliant and ethical behavior is an important element in annual performance reviews.

Company employees are subject to disciplinary action up to and including termination for violating the Code of Conduct or applicable Company policies and procedures.

Disciplinary action depends on the nature of the violation. Veloxis is not obligated to take any particular disciplinary action, but any discipline imposed may include: oral or written warning; probation; demotion; suspension; and termination of employment. Some of the factors that may be taken into account when determining the proper disciplinary action include: the nature and seriousness of the violation; damage caused by the violation; whether the violation was committed knowingly; the impact on the Company; and the individual's history of compliance with the Code of Conduct/Company's policies and procedures.

Subcontractors and agents, where applicable, can be subject to Veloxis-imposed corrective action or contract termination in the event of a violation of the Code of Conduct and applicable Company policies and procedures.

Failure to comply with applicable law, regulations and Company policies and procedures could subject individuals, as well as Veloxis, to civil liability, including the imposition of fines, criminal liability (including penalties and imprisonment), as well as other sanctions such as exclusion from participation in federal health care programs.

While all Company employees and, where applicable, subcontractors and agents must follow the Code of Conduct, each Company manager must be an example for those under his or her leadership. They must know the Code of Conduct, and all Company policies and procedures relevant to their area of responsibility. Managers must create and maintain a workplace where all employees and, where applicable, subcontractors and agents under their leadership know that ethical and legal behavior is expected of them.

RESPONSE TO DETECTED OFFENSES

The Ethics and Compliance team will log all reports of suspected violations of law, regulation, OIG guidance, the Code of Conduct or the Company's policies and procedures received and will investigate all such reports.

All employees, subcontractors and agents are obligated to cooperate with Veloxis, including the disclosure of all information and records relevant to the investigation, in the investigation of suspected violations of law, regulation, OIG guidance, PhRMA Code guidance, the Code of Conduct or the Company's policies and procedures.

Whenever a compliance issue has been identified, the Compliance Officer will develop a written corrective action plan designed to not only address the specific compliance issue identified but also with the intent of preventing similar compliance-oriented issues in the future in other areas or departments. Corrective action may include a recommendation that a sanction or disciplinary action be imposed on the offending employee(s), subcontractor(s) or agent(s).

Whenever the Compliance Officer has credible evidence of misconduct from any source, whether learned through an investigation, audit or otherwise, and the Compliance Officer believes that such misconduct may violate criminal, civil or administrative law, the Compliance Officer shall promptly report such matter to the Veloxis Chief Executive Officer and Board of Directors.
